Stonerise Home Health’s Approach to Transitional Care

As patients transition between one care setting or provider to another, they are at higher risk for hospitalization. Stonerise Home Health’s Transitional Care services ensure a patient-centered plan incorporates evidence-based best practices to improve care coordination, patient engagement and clinical outcomes. We get patients back to health and back to thriving – all in the comfort of their home.

Our Best Practices

A sample of the transitional care best practice interventions we deliver today:

Care Coordination

- » Timely initiation of care
- » Use of predictive analytics for hospital and fall risk assessments
- » Integration of therapy and social services
- » Increased touch points during high risk and stabilization periods
- » Early intervention with care providers for ED/hospital diversion
- » Medication reconciliation

Patient Engagement

- » Welcome call prior to start of care
- » Motivational and self-management engagement
- » Patient goal establishment and partnership
- » Telephonic follow-up between visits
- » Patient specific education via written, oral, or video
- » Use of “Teach Back” method
